Lone Claw Remains
A single claw among the many that have been investigated and exhausted, remained alive. Ralph Hall, an airplane pilot, and two others still hunted in the region near Tonopah, Nev., 280 miles by air from where the major search is centered. There residents reported seeing flares of light from a mountainside. The country around the mining town is virtually uninhabited. They camped there last night and today searched eastward toward the Utah state line.

BY AIR and land, the hunt for the missing Los Angeles-Salt Lake City liner, with seven aboard, continues, although virtually all hope for finding the four passengers and three members of the crew alive has been abandoned. The liner is believed lost in the snow-drifted wilds of the Wasatch mountains. In this Central Press Soundphoto a ground crew on horseback stops to get its bearings.

KIWANIS CLUB ARRANGES ITS HOLIDAY PARTY

The Kiwanis club will be host to lady-Kiwanians Monday evening with a Christmas program to be presented. The Rev. W. Newton Mantle, of Mt. Sterling, a native of London and an interesting speaker, will discuss the English Christmas as compared to that in America. The meeting will start at 6:30 o'clock with a dinner in Hanley's tearoom. Elster B. Copeland is chairman of the committee in charge. Sunday at 1 p. m. newly-elected directors and chairmen of various committees for the next year will be served a turkey dinner at the home of Dwight Steele, who will succeed Glen Geib as president Jan. 1. A school of instruction will be conducted during the afternoon.

CUBA'S BATISTA TO FORCE GOMEZ TO QUIT OFFICE

HAVANA, Dec. 19.—(UP)—Supporters of Col. Fulgencio Batista, Cuba's strong man, said today that a bill of impeachment would be brought against President Miguel Mariano Gomez, who has rebelled against army dictation, in a special session of the house Sunday or Monday. Batista sent his controversial nine-cents-a-bag sugar tax bill, passed overwhelmingly by both houses of congress, to the president with the plain inference that he sign it "or else."

MEN GIVEN BREAK
EXCELSIOR SPRINGS, Mo., Dec. 19.—(UP)—A women's apparel store gave the men a break by hiring men clerks and allowing only men shoppers for a day. The object was to save the men embarrassment and give them a "sympathetic" understanding when buying Christmas gifts for wives and sweethearts.

PHYSICIAN BANS POPE'S AUDIENCE CHRISTMAS EVE

Reception For College of Cardinals Cancelled Because of Illness

GOOD NIGHT REPORTED

Hope Remains For Address Seeking Peace in Spain

VATICAN CITY, Dec. 19.—(UP)—A semi-official source at the Vatican said today that the traditional reception by the pope of the college of cardinals Christmas eve had been cancelled. It was understood that the decision, if adhered to, would be in deference to the fear of Prof. Arminta Milani, the pope's private physician, that the pontiff would be subjected to undue strain by the audience.

Intended to Seek Peace
Christmas eve is the occasion on which the cardinals visit the pope and extend Christmas and New Year greetings. It is customary for the pope to respond. This year, the pope hoped despite his failing health to review the world situation and particularly to appeal for peace in Spain.

Only a few hours before the semi-official assertion that the audience had been cancelled, officials said that the pope seemed rested after a comfortable night, and was in good spirits when his valet awakened him at 7 o'clock. It was said also that, though it was thought advisable to cancel the Christmas audience to the Cardinals, the pope would be able to receive cardinals individually in his bedroom to receive their Christmas greetings.

BRUNO'S ESCAPE ROUSES FUROR IN PENNSYLVANIA

POTTSVILLE, Pa., Dec. 19.—(UP)—Joseph J. Bruno's sensational escape from a guard who thought he was in a dentist's chair stirred state officials today and brought charges that the convicted murderer was aided by "certain public officers and others." Bruno, former political boss, was found guilty of participating in the Kefauver 1934 election-eve massacre of five persons and was awaiting transfer to a state penitentiary, when he strolled calmly away from Jail Guard Guy Irvin. Attorney General Charles J. Margiotti, charging that the escape was "a well-planned conspiracy," hurried here from Harrisburg to take charge of the investigation. Chief County Detective L. D. Bouno predicted several arrests. Margiotti said criminal proceedings would be instituted promptly against "all parties in any manner connected with this flagrant disregard for the law."

Little Boy Writes Letter to Santa Claus; Dies in Missouri Hospital

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Dec. 19.—(UP)—Eight-year-old Donald Cox had asked an appointment with Santa Claus for Christmas day in a letter to him, but today there was no need to mail the letter. Donald was suffering from a brain tumor that was pressing on a nerve to his eyes. He was slowly becoming blind. He wanted the operation that would make his eyes well — so he could see Santa Claus. "I'm going to write him a letter," Donald said. "Then he'll have all my presents ready to bring here to the hospital." With the aid of nurses, he started his letter and for inspiration the nurses obtained a red cardboard Santa and placed it beside his bed. Yesterday morning he finished his letter, asking for a red wagon and many toys. Later nurses came and told him, gently that this was the day for the operation. Donald grinned and turned to the cardboard Santa. "I'm going to be operated on, Santa," he said. "Then my eyes will be all right and I'll be able to see you when you bring my toys." As they took him to the operating room, Donald assured a physician he was "okay" and reminded the nurses to be sure he had said in the letter that he'd be well enough to see Santa on Christmas day. The long, tedious operation took hours. Blood transfusions followed in an effort to save the weakened lad. Then he died. Nurses, tears streaming down their cheeks, took the cardboard Santa and placed it with the letter in the little bed Donald occupied.

THREE SISTERS DIE AS FLAMES DESTROY HOME

TARENTUM, Pa., Dec. 19.—(UP)—Three young sisters were suffocated or burned to death early today in a fire that swept through their Natrona Heights home. The victims were Edith Hane Swartzlander, 12, and her sisters, Phyllis Anne, 9, and Audrey, 6, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Swartzlander. Their parents were not at home. The mother, after putting her daughters to bed, left to take the other children to their homes after a pre-Christmas community party at the Natrona Heights fire company building. The father, 15 minutes before midnight, had kissed them good-night and departed for the Allegheny Steel company, where he is employed on the midnight shift. A half hour later the fire broke out.

WINTER STARTS ITS VISIT THEN CHANGES MIND

King Winter blew into Circleville Friday night accompanied by sleet, snow and rain and made a quick exit Saturday taking away all traces of his visit. The sleet and snow storm made streets and highway dangerous for traffic before midnight Friday, but rainfall early Saturday worked a disappearing act on the slush. The minimum temperature during the night was 25 degrees. Rain was predicted for Saturday with Sunday fair and slightly colder.

WINNIPEG MART SKIDDING AFTER NEW HIGH MARK

WINNIPEG, Man., Dec. 19.—(UP)—Grain traders turned abruptly to the selling side of the market on the Winnipeg exchange today and July rye futures broke 5 cents a bushel — the limit permitted in one day's trading — after four days of upsurging prices. July was quoted at $1.01½ a bushel.

Desire of traders to pocket their profits after the four-day swing to higher prices was directly responsible for the break.

World markets in all grains were lower today, indicating a wide spread desire of traders to wait for week-end developments before making further purchases of grains.

AIRPLANE SPEED ATTEMPT ENDED AS SHIP FALLS

ISTRES, France, Dec. 19.—(UP)—Maryse Hiltz, attempting to beat the women's speed record held by Helen Boucher, crashed today at Etang Estomac, near Fos Sur Mer, but suffered only slight injuries. The plane was wrecked.

HITLER WARNED TO STOP NAZIS GOING TO SPAIN

Britain's Eden Informs Von Ribbentrop of Danger in Movement

"VOLUNTEERS" DOUBTED

26 Diplomatic Staffmen Ready to Enter War

LONDON, Dec. 19.—(UP)—Unofficial but usually reliable sources said today that Capt. Anthony Eden, foreign secretary, firmly warned the German ambassador, Joachim von Ribbentrop, of Great Britain's grave view of Germany's dispatch of "volunteers" to Spain. Coincidentally, the Manchester guardian's diplomatic correspondent reported that Germany was sending regular army units to Spain under the guise of "volunteers" to fight with the rebel forces there. He identified some of the German troops in Spain as being from the 6th grenadiers and 13th infantry regiments, ordinarily stationed at Muenster, in Westphalia.

Other Aides Follow
The United Press also understood that 14 members of Von Ribbentrop's diplomatic staff and 12 personal servants of the ambassador are departing for Berlin simultaneously with his trip. The German ambassador was reported to have indicated to Eden that Germany is willing to take measures to ban the sending. (Continued on Page Eight)

Singing Mouse

MEET Minnie, the singing mouse. You probably have heard her over the radio from Chicago. If not, we'll tell you a bit about her. Minnie was caught in a Woodstock, Ill., children's school after she had been heard singing—a form of squeaking. She can't be stopped singing when she starts, and when stops it's hard to start her. Zoologists explain that the phenomenon is due to Minnie's respiratory system which causes a shrill squeak when she breathes.

EXPERT REPORTS CATTLE PRICES TO BE HIGHER

Prices on finished cattle will be higher in 1937, L. P. McCann, of Ohio State university's extension service, told local feeders Friday night at a meeting in the Farm Bureau office. He explained the short corn crop will mean higher feed costs per pound of beef. Shortage of roughage also will influence the cost. He predicted a straight grain ration with hay will run the cost of beef up to 15 cents a pound. A grain, silage and roughage ration was estimated at a cost of 10 to 11 cents.

The forty cattle feeders attending the meeting voted to hold another tour in March and another discussion meeting in February.

ROUTE 22 CRASH SCENE

Driver's Nose Nearly Amputated in Wreck

Two Ezel, Ky., school teachers returning to their homes in Pennsylvania for the Christmas holidays, were seriously injured at 9 a. m. Saturday when the car in which they were riding crashed into the concrete bridge on Route 22 near the farm of Harry Dunlap. Those injured were: WILLIAM HAGAN, 28, of 249 W. The injured were removed to Berger hospital in Hill's ambulance, and are under the care of Dr. D. V. Courtwright. Deputy Sheriff Miller (Hagan) was told the car skidded into the bridge after passing a truck. They were riding in a Plymouth coupe.

Another group of teachers from Kentucky was in front of the wrecked car, Fissell learned, and did not know of the mishap.

Rosella Staatsbaugh, Dayton, suffered bruises on the face Friday at 10:30 p. m. when the auto in which she was riding figured in a collision with a car driven by Ernest Rowland, New Holland, Route 2, on Route 22 about a mile east of New Holland. (Continued on Page Eight)

—A Story for Good Little Girls and Boys—

An Evening at the North Pole--- How Santa Makes His Selections

Aunty Mollie Claus
Is His Helper
These Days

By IDA DANZIGER

ANY AMERICAN HOME,

Dec. 19.—"Mommie—"

"Yes, dear?"

"You know 'bout what I was askin' you last night?"

"Yes, dear — you mean

about Santa Claus?"

"Yes, mommie—how does

Santa know where I live?"

"Well, honey—just as soon as I finish drying the dishes,

I'll tell you all about it—but meanwhile you get into your nightie."

"I'll do that right away,

mommie—please hurry."

"Come here, dear. Let's cuddle up before the fire on this comfy rocking chair."

"M-m-m—that's nice —

now I'm all comfy, mommie.

Now you tell me my story

'bout Santa. Hurry, please, mommie!"

"Well, dear — you know

Santa Claus is a very, very important person—and most of all he's the very busiest fellow that anyone ever heard of—especially 'round about snowflake time."

"And, of course, he's so awfully busy—that he hardly has time to eat. And no time at all in which to cook

—so—at snowflake time of year—someone comes to stay

at Santa's house!"

Santa's Helper

"I'll bet you'll never guess who that someone is?"

"No—it isn't anyone that you think of."

"It's—are you listening real close?"

"That nice someone who comes to Santa's house is none other than Santa Claus'—

Aunty Mollie Claus. Yes, sir—

—that's just who it is."

"Ho — wait until you hear

how Aunty Mollie Claus

looked. She looked something like Santa."

"She has round and rosy cheeks—"

"And—blue eyes that twinkle."

"And beautiful silver hair."

"Today—she was dressed in white and she had a red apron tied around her middle—

—where it tied behind her.

With a big bow that stood out and in her hair she had twined some red berry leaves."

"And when Aunty Mollie

Claus smiled—she looked just like a wrapped up Christmas package; and when her eyes sparkled with mischief—she looked like a surprise Christmas package with lots of nice things inside of it."

"You know, Aunty Mollie

Claus was just about as mischievous as Santa sometimes.

She played lots of jokes on Santa—like the time she made melted icicle soup—oh—

—but I'd better save that for another time—"

"This time we had better get on with our story for tonight."

"Aunty Mollie Claus was

the grandest person you ever met. After you get to know her real well—you'll love her

just about as much as you do Santa Claus himself. Yes, indeed, dear, I'll tell you lots of stories about what Aunty

Mollie Claus did in Santa

Town."

Spic and Span

"Aunty Mollie Claus was

the finest housekeeper and kept Santa's house spic and span. In fact—"

"It was so clean—that if you had wanted to eat off of the floor—when you got through and if there were any crumbs left—why Cappy Claus would pounce upon the crumbs and you could see your own face

looking right back at you!"

"Well, now, I forgot something, didn't I?"

"I forgot to tell you who Cappy Claus is."

"Now I'll tell you—Cappy

Claus is Aunty Mollie's dog—

and Santa's dog. And what a dear wise doggie he is."

"Cappy Claus is almost as busy as Santa is himself."

"Do you know why he is so busy? Why, it's because he's a messenger dog. Oh, yes—

he takes all the messages for Aunty Mollie Claus writes in the big gold book, containing names of all the boys and girls in the land as Santa decides on the toys which will please each one the most.

Santa 'round wherever Santa wants to deliver a message.

"For instance—if Santa wants some more wood from the forest to finish the toy

trains with—then he writes

out the message and gives it to Cappy Claus to deliver immediately to Charley Beaver—

who is the general manager of the forest. And Cappy Claus never fails—except—sometimes—but that's another story and I'd better get on with my first story—"

"But some day when I have more time I'll tell you about how Cappy came to live with Santa and Aunty

Mollie Claus. But now for our first story."

"This evening — Aunty

Mollie Claus was washing

and drying the dishes as fast

as she could because Santa had sent home a message

with Cappy—this afternoon

from his workshop—that this night was the night of all nights when they would begin to check and cross. My——you'd better hold your breath cause this is the most important job in Santa Town."

"Why, didn't you know?"

A Big Night

"Check and Cross night

comes about this time of year—that's exactly how

Santa knows what boy and what girl shall have what present."

"Gracious me, was Aunty

Mollie Claus in a rustle! She went 'round and 'round the room so fast—she looked like a small and shiny whirlwind of snow when the sun spar-kles on the snow and makes the snow shine like crushed diamonds."

"Aunty Mollie Claus got out Santa's red slippers—

placed his pipe on the table

beside his great big arm chair and then, last but not least, she placed a soft pillow for Santa's feet to rest

on—'cause — when Santa's

feet rest on a pillow, why then he can think and think and think, the very best of all."

"Of course, Aunty Mollie

did not want Santa to make any mistakes that night or —

"Whatever would the dear children say?"

"No—no—it would be unthinkable and Aunty Mollie shook her head at the thought of what would happen if Santa were to get the right toy in the wrong place.

It would be sad — wouldn't it?"

"And when Aunty Mollie

Claus was finished — she looked her parlor all over and then she saw that she had forgotten something and it must be done at once for she could hear Santa's jingle bells in the distance and she knew that Santa was coming home from his work shop.

So —

"She quickly pulled out a little table with strong legs

and set it in front of Santa's

big chair before the fireplace and set another smaller chair

to sit on—right behind that little strong table—and then she placed a large gold pen

with a yellow ostrich feather

top on the table and set a large bottle of gold ink there beside the pen and smiled

very sweetly at everything."

"But she was just in time for jingle bells were heard

just outside the door now and Santa would be in the room in a jiffy. She ran to the door, opened it wide, and dear old Santa popped into the house."

"Hall—ooo, hall—oooo!"

A Jolly House

"Santa and Cappy Claus

were in the room and then there wasn't much room left over for it was a small house.

But it was the jolliest house

—if you ever could hear about all the fun and good times that were had there!"

"Ah—!" Santa rubbed his hands together at the sight of his fireplace and what was before him. He patted Aunty

Mollie Claus on the back—and said, "Good!—and now

for the gold book."

"And with that, he went to a cabinet and kneeled down.

Then he took a silver key off his chain that had been hanging on his vest and proceeded to unlock the cabinet door.

Next he drew out the big gold book and carefully

placed it on the little table

before his big arm chair—

and he looked very happy."

"Santa then pulled off his big boots and set aside his jingle bells and brushed the snow flakes from his beard.

He took off his heavy red overcoat and then he was all ready to eat his dinner."

"My — what a dinner Aunty

Mollie Claus had made. It made your mouth water to even think about it."

"First — Aunty Mollie

served her famous red berry bunjee. She made that by crushing red berries in the summer time and letting them soak in sugar until winter time."

"Yum yum! Santa wiped off a few drops that had spilled on his white beard."

"Next he had fresh waiter-pike that Anna Belle Beaver had sent over and which had been caught by

Charley Beaver, her sweetheart."

"And Santa ate his vegetables with his fish 'cause

he needed his strength and how else would he get his strength if he didn't eat his vegetables, hmmm?"

"And last, but not least,

Santa drank a large glass of hot tea with a huge slice of Aunty Mollie's light-of-the-moon cake. Santa dearly loved this cake for it was filled with nuts and raisins

and cherries and figs and fruit and everything good inside of it."

"So you see—now Santa was feeling good enough for anything and I'm sure Aunty

Mollie wanted him to feel

just so—because Aunty Mollie didn't ever want Santa to be too harsh with any little boy or girl 'cause—"

Santa Was a Boy, Too

"Aunty Mollie Claus could

remember that sometimes little boys and girls don't really mean what they are doing—and only do naughty

things because they are so anxious to do good things."

"Besides—here's a secret

for just you and me—Aunty

Mollie Claus could remember when Santa was a little boy

and did lots of mischievous things also!"

"Now don't tell Santa that Aunty Mollie told us about that, will you? Because Santa always wants to forget about it."

"Now you see how it was that Santa was feeling just right and ready to start the

The Supreme Gift of Love

St. John, "the apostle of love," when nearly a hundred years old wrote of the birth of Jesus thus: "Herein was the love of God manifested in us, that God hath sent his only begotten Son, that we might live through him."

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Scripture—1 John 4:7-19.

The supreme gift of love was the world's first and best Christmas gift. "God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth on him should not perish, but have eternal life."

John says, "We have beheld and bear witness that the Father hath sent the Son to be the Saviour of the world." So the angel said to the shepherds, "Unto you is born a Saviour which is Christ the Lord."

We should give gifts at Christmas time out of love to God for his gift of his Son that first Christmas. "Beloved, if God so loved us, we also ought to love one another."

GOLDEN TEXT—Luke 2:14.

The Supreme Gift of Love

"BRASS TACKS" ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By DR. ALVIN E. BELL

(The International Uniform Christmas Lesson for Dec. 20 is 1 John 4:7-19, the Golden Text being Luke 2:14, "Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace among men in whom he is well pleased.")

CHRISTMAS is pre-eminently the festival of love. Back of the first Christmas gift to the world was the love wherewith, "God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth on him should not perish, but have everlasting life."

The Supreme Proofs of Love It is natural that John, the apostle of love, and "the disciple Jesus loved" should interpret Christmas in terms of love. As the last of the apostles, perhaps approaching a round century in age, he wrote this letter, which may be the very latest New Testament book, to Christians, whom he addressed as "my little children."

No man then living knew more intimately the love of God than did John, and he would have said that he learned it all from Jesus Christ. To him the supreme proofs of the love of God for the world were found in the birth and death of Jesus Christ. "Herein was the love of God manifested in us, that God hath sent his only begotten Son into the world that we might live through him. Herein is love, not that we loved God, but that he loved us, and sent his Son to be the propitiation for our sins."

God the Source of Love John gives us our best definition of God when he says "God is love." As such God is the source of all love: "Love is of God." Love is the distinguishing trait of all God's children, if they are to look like and "take after" their Father: "Every one that loveth is begotten of God, and knoweth God. He that loveth not knoweth not God; for God is love." We cannot have and enjoy the divine love for which Christmas stands without radiating it and sharing it. Christmas not only confers a blessing, but it also creates a responsibility; "Beloved, if God so loved us, we also ought to love one another." The essence of the Christmas spirit is this spontaneous desire to share as God shared his Son with us.

The Saviour's Birth John rejoiced in Christmas because to him it connoted primarily the birth of a Saviour; "We beheld and bear witness that the Father hath sent the Son to be the Saviour of the world." This is in accord with the angel's message to Joseph, "Thou shalt call his name Jesus; for it is he that shall save his people from their sins." It is in accord also with the message of the angel to the shepherds: "There is born to you this day in the City of David a Saviour, who is Christ the Lord." God's primary object back of Christmas was the world's salvation: "Herein is love, not that we loved God, but that he loved us, and sent his Son to be the propitiation of our sin."

Our sin created the necessity for Christmas which God's love and grace met in the incarnation and atonement of the Son of God.

Love Casts Out Fear The angel's message to Zacharias in preparation for Christmas was, "Fear not, Zacharias," to Mary, "Fear not, Mary," to Joseph, "Joseph, fear not," and to the shepherds, "Be not afraid." Fear entered the world with sin in Eden. Christ came into the world to destroy sin and cast out fear: "There is no fear in love; but perfect love casteth out fear."

HOLC FORECLOSURES

TWO reasons may be cited for the drop in foreclosures authorized by the Home Owners' Loan Corporation to the lowest monthly total since last May. The obvious one, of course, is rising employment enabling delinquents to pay up their arrears. The other is that the process of weeding out those who, when they obtained HOLC mortgages, had no intention of keeping up their payments. They had the idea that the government would not proceed against them—not for a long time at least—but they know differently now.

With 1,033,000 mortgages acquired as security for $3,000,000,000, the corporation to November 1 had started 57,413 foreclosures, or approximately 5.5 per cent of the total number of loans. The properties actually acquired, however, represent only 1.4 per cent, as it is the corporation's policy to deal leniently with those who would pay if they could, while hanging down on the willful evaders. That is eminently fair, and no legitimate cause for question so long as due regard is had for the protection of the governments investment.

Information is lacking in one important particular. That is the percentage that total delinquencies bear to total payments, interest and principal now due. Some months ago this was placed at more than 25 per cent. It would be interesting to know what effect improved conditions have had on such collections.

DOWN THE RATHOLE

PERMANENT quietus should be put on the Townsend plan to give old age pensions of $200 a month to all persons past 60 by the determination of the select committee of the House, which analyzed the program, that the plan is economically unsound and would ruin the nation. There is nothing new about these conclusions, which are those of almost everybody who does not live in a land of dreams; but the official disapproval should confine the scheme to the limbo of forgotten things.

We can well afford to let the Townsend plan slip down the political rathole. We shall never, while the human mind is given to speculation, lack for proffered panaceas. The only trouble with them is that they will not work. With the adherents of Townsendism the motivating force was the will to believe. It is said their dreams should be shattered, but by the tens of thousands they had abandoned their illusions long before the election.

Any permanent old age pension device has to face the realities, and by comparison with the Townsend plan they are pretty grim. The plan was founded on a belief that has brought many a nation to ruin, namely that the printing press is mightier than economic law.

PAGES from the Diary of an Antiquated Reporter:
Up to a snappy morning, and finding the wife ill of the plague did attempt to brew coffee. The result, if it could be repeated, would prove a more potent crime deterrent than castor oil if forcibly administered. For by force is the only way anyone would take it. Given a smoky stove, a battered ten pound lard bucket, free access to the coffee container and all placed at day-break in a fishing or hunting camp and I can do as well as most men, but these new-fangled contraptions that require at least a B. E. degree of the operator are befuddling. So, away to the nearest restaurant.
To the post on foot, finding need of limbering muscles screaming in protest after following Sam Rader over his beloved Pike county hills for the greater part of a day. Have not seen Pres Enderlin or Tom Renick since we were guests of the genial Sam, so fear for the worst. Three against one that I must write of eating twenty-four inches of smoked sausage and that the personal gun never cracked during the day except at tin cans near the cabin. Had entertained doubts regarding some of Sam's stories of Pike county, but after seeing the lay of the land am willing to admit that anything is possible there.

Noted fine new signs in the Mason store windows and beautiful Christmas decorations going on the Elks club. Bowed to G. P. Hunsicker, who Tuesday night at Williamsport will observe the forty-fifth anniversary of embarking in the banking business. Chatted briefly with George Grand-Girard and found him hale, hearty and happy. Laughed at the antics of a half dozen cute white pups in Mykrantz's window. Must keep the daughter on the other side of the street unless wish to add a dog to the pet collection.
Heard a horror tale of a sheep killing dog on the loose in the village. One sheep was not only killed, but entirely eaten. Other sheep in the flock escaped injury, but how their owner does not know, for they could not run. Ann Renick, who is only 7, has not yet learned that a fund is provided to reimburse sheep raisers for stock killed by dogs. When she does it is likely that the county commissioners will receive a bill for one beautiful woolly Christmas decoration lamb and then the sheriff will have to use a cap pistol on her pet fox terrier.

See by the papers that only four shopping days remain until Christmas. Have now made the few yuletide purchases that I deem absolutely necessary, so can sit back and feel smarter than some folk. Not much, though for did wait almost too long in one instance.
Just about the time conditions look bright in the auto industry along come strikes and darken the entire situation. Rather a hardship on those who wish to work and who need the money. Certainly with all our ingenuity we should be able to figure out a better means of settling wage controversies than by halting production and essential wages for the workers. In this instance not only are certain plants and their disgruntled workers affected, but many other plants employing thousands of satisfied workers as well. The more man sees of man the more certain he is of his dumbness.

WELL DRILLER GIVES HEADACHE

WASHINGTON — Diplomatic chickens have a weird way of coming home to roost. Take the strange case of James E. Welsh, a well driller in Venezuela. Originally the State Department chalked up the Welsh case as too petty to notice, but it has now caused Cordell Hull almost as much trouble as some of his headaches in Europe.

Welsh had a child by a Venezuelan wife, and a reasonably prosperous business of drilling artesian wells in the Venezuelan cattle areas.

As a result of charges which Welsh claims were trumped up by his enemies he was thrown in jail, during which his wife deserted him and his drilling business collapsed. He remained in jail several months, was never brought to trial, finally was released.

Upon that release he sought the custody of his daughter, then three years old. Also he sought damages for having been held in jail without trial.

This was during the State Department regime of Henry L. Stimson, whose career diplomats ignored the case.

PICKETS WHITE HOUSE

Finally Welsh came to Washington and literally camped on the doorstep of the State Department. He got no help. Then he resorted to more drastic measures. He inspired protests from Louisiana Congressmen (Louisiana was his home state). Still the State Department was unmoved.

So one day Welsh appeared in front of the White House, a huge pair of iron shackles, such as he wore in his Venezuelan prison, around his ankles.

Still the State Department did nothing. But finally, Mr. Roosevelt's New Deal hit the State Department, at least to the extent that Assistant Secretary Harry Payer looked into the Welsh case, sent a note to Venezuela demanding the return of three-year-old Irma Welsh, an American citizen. This was accomplished.

But by this time Welsh had become so bitter over his treatment that, where as originally he might have been satisfied, he now continued his vendetta.

He pressed his claim for damages for illegal imprisonment. Regarding this the State Department refused to act.

So Welsh enlisted the services of Huey Long.

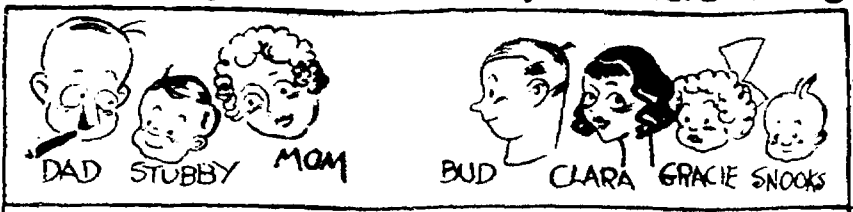

Many people wondered, during the heyday of the late ebullient Senator from Louisiana, why he took such an interest in Latin America. James Welsh was the answer. Whenever Welsh could find anything poisonous against the State Department he fed it to Huey. Huey, delighted to heckle the career diplomats, promptly took the Senate floor.

These speeches were cabled by the press to Latin America, and caused the State Department no end of embarrassment. Its officials began to wish they had settled the Welsh case years before.

There is good even in bad things. Death is bad, but it stops a lot of useless talk.

Borah, reports from Idaho indicate, put up a great fight—for Borah.

Nails and Diseases, Especially Ingrowing Nails

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
TOE NAILS are subject to the same diseases as finger nails, which were described yesterday, and besides are liable to some troubles of their own account.

Dr. Clendenning

The amount of weight bearing and pinching that they receive, not only from their functions but from tight shoes.

The commonest trouble of this kind is ingrowing toe nail. Ingrowing toe nail occurs most often in the great toe. A badly cut toe nail with a sharp edge is usually the beginning of the trouble. It digs into the skin of the nail bed and this swells, surrounding the rest of the nail, which proceeds to make new incisions in the skin. These incisions very easily become infected, proud flesh forms, and with the nail imbedded in the skin, we have the full-blown picture of the ingrown toe nail.

It is not always a minor malady. Infection of the whole foot and leg with blood poisoning can result from neglected cases.

Treatment Satisfactory

Treatment is simple and satisfactory in most instances. The object of treatment is to keep the nail edge away from the flesh, and to kill the infection and reduce the inflammation. Those parts of the nail which impinge on the flesh should be kept trimmed away, and

When it becomes too troublesome to be borne, or when it becomes actually dangerous from repeated infections, that portion of the nail which digs into the flesh, and its bed, can be removed surgically. It is a simple operation, which is routine with all surgeons. It can be done under local anesthesia, entirely without pain. The amount of relief it affords is out of all proportion to the apparent triviality of the disease.

The toe nails should be trimmed regularly straight across, so as to leave no sharp edge which can cut into the skin of the nail bed or of the neighboring toes.

Especially after middle age the feet should be the object of constant and tender care. A foot bath at night in lukewarm and then cold water, and the skin afterward thoroughly dried and dusted with a powder, is grateful to aching feet. If there is excessive sweating, a few drops to a teaspoon of formalin added to the bath water will be found helpful.

As I have said before, I do not believe that middle-aged people should bathe all over as regularly as they did in youth, especially in the winter time, but the foot bath is a substitute which should be taken daily.

After the age of 50 don't forget the old-fashioned footstool.

The BLOODHOUNDS Bay
By WALTER S. MASTERMAN
COPYRIGHT: RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

READ THIS FIRST:
Jack Reid, who witnesses to the murder of Sir Henry Severing in the chapel of the ancient Abbey, is a ne'er-do-well who has been posing as an itinerant painter. In the chapel to steal a jeweled cross, Reid could raise no alarm at the time of the murder for fear of incriminating himself. Richard Seiden, summoned from Scotland Yard, questions Lady Hilda, the victim's widow, and Eric Colindale, agent for the estate, who is in love with her. He also talks with Colonel Graham, a neighbor whose bloodhounds found the body of Sir Henry in the coffin of his father, and Mrs. Thornton, the housekeeper. Lady Hilda and Colindale are shocked by Sir Henry's will which leaves everything to James, the butler, except an allowance for the children and his widow. PROVIDED she marries Colindale. Reid, who has fallen in love with Sylvia, Lawrence, and the children of the two Severing children, determines to help Seiden solve the murder when he learns her life and the children's are endangered. One of the mourners at Sir Henry's funeral, a Mrs. Holden, shows unusual interest in Reid. After a chat with Hilda, the village innkeeper, Mrs. Holden proves to be Seiden in disguise. Reid visits Colindale's post and Colonel Graham in the village to supervise his estate, too, to learn her life and the children's are endangered. Reid, who has fallen in love with Sylvia, Lawrence, and the children of the two Severing children, determines to help Seiden solve the murder when he learns her life and the children's are endangered. Reid, who has fallen in love with Sylvia, Lawrence, and the children of the two Severing children, determines to help Seiden solve the murder when he learns her life and the children's are endangered.

In the dining room a pleasant surprise awaited him. Lady Severing, with Sylvia and the two children, were sitting by the open hearth in the center of the room, the lighted glow of the fire had been lighting owing to the sudden drop in temperature.

The girl was evidently ill at ease. The new departure on Lady Severing's part of having the children and herself for meals had followed Colindale's departure and her own suggestion with regard to moving the children's quarters. To her astonishment Hilda had not only acquiesced, but had immediately suggested that in future they should all take meals together. It was obviously right, but to Sylvia's mind there was a hint of anxiety about the change. Her mind, already full of gloomy forebodings, saw in this move a sinister meaning. Lady Severing wanted them all together for mutual protection. She was therefore greatly relieved to hear that Reid was to join them at lunch; it brought him nearer.

The twins had recovered their spirits, in spite of Colindale's departure, for the change of rooms was quite an adventure and they had spent the morning moving.
"Mr. Reid is kindly filling Mr. Colindale's place as agent," Lady Severing said when they were at lunch.

Sylvia's face showed no outward sign, but her eyes met Reid's, and he saw in them a look of intense relief, and more, of gratitude, for she was under the impression that he had worked it.

The twins eyed him gravely, summing him up in their precocious manner. "Of course we shall miss Uncle Eric, but we'll get used to it in time. I think he'll do," Joan said gravely.

"What shall we call you?" Marian said. "You must be an uncle of some sort."
"My name is Jack. Will that do?" Reid said, smiling at them.

"What rubbish you children are talking," Lady Severing intervened. "Don't take any notice of them, Mr. Reid."

"I don't mind in the least. They used to come and look at my paintings and pass most uncomplimentary remarks on them."

"I can't paint at all," Marian remarked.
"How dark it's getting!" Sylvia observed, to change the subject.

"There must be thunder coming." "I think you might take the children to their new quarters, Sylvia," Lady Severing said with a smile.

"Mr. Reid and I are going to have a business chat."
"Come and have tea with us, Uncle Jack," the twins exclaimed together.

"May I?" he asked of Lady Severing; but his glance stole to Sylvia.

"Certainly, but I warn you that they will tire you out very quickly," Reid answered.

Reid and Lady Severing were left alone, and he offered his cigarette case to her. She remarked: "We'll have coffee here, and then we'll go to the office, which is in the servants' quarters, right at the back."

In answer to her ring, James entered, and Lady Severing watched him carefully, for it was rather a critical moment.

Reid waited till James had placed the salver down, and then came towards him.

"Lady Severing has offered me the post of agent to the estate, and I have accepted," he said with a frank smile. "I don't know much about the job and shall want all the help I can get. I hope we shall get along together, James."

He held out his hand with a gesture, but the making of a compact, and Lady Severing understood that Reid was telling the butler that he knew the circumstances and hoped they would both stand by her and the children.

The face of the butler, usually so impassive, underwent a change. There was a look of pleasure, and more, of satisfaction on his face.

"I am sure this is very kind of you, Mr. Reid," he said. "I am really delighted that you have come here. I shall certainly do all I can, and please don't hesitate to ask; but I feel sure that you will manage splendidly."

He shook the extended hand warmly, and then became the rigid butler again, asking whether anything else was required.

The little scene had occupied only a few minutes, but to Lady Severing it meant much; she felt a sense of some great load being lifted from her mind.

"That was very fine of you, Mr. Reid," she said, when the door was shut. "I am grateful, and I know James will appreciate that act of courtesy."

It was almost dark in the room; heavy thunderclouds had rolled up during the afternoon, but to Lady Severing the latticed windows like angry wasps trying to force their way in.

"Shall I switch on the light?" he asked.

"It's not worth it," she replied, almost gaily. "We'll go to the office and have a look at the papers there. Eric kept them in apple pie order."

It was after five o'clock when they had finished for the day. There had been much to go through; the question of the rotation of crops for next year, the pay rolls, and the marketing of produce. Colindale had persuaded Sir Henry to build some extensive glass, under which tomatoes and early chrysanthemums were forced, and a considerable profit had been made, not all of which had found its way into the estate funds, if the truth were known.

"I am motoring down to the village to pay a call," Lady Severing told Reid. "You are expected for tea."

She conducted him to a large room on the first floor, where the children had installed themselves. Hilda had not exaggerated—the twins were all that she had said, and Sylvia let them have their way—she had lacked control, but she knew only too well the fits of depression, the morbid introspective moods, and the times of lassitude that came to these delicate children.

James came in at last and gazed smilingly at the scene, for Reid by this time had been converted into a bear with the aid of a rug, and Joan was mounted on his back, while Marian led him around the room on all fours by a rope. "I beg your pardon, sir," he addressed the patient animal who was half underneath the table, "but I think you ought to dress if you are going to Colonel Graham's. I took the liberty of having your suitcase brought from your cottage, and have laid out your things."

Reid rose, crumpled but laughing. "Till come at once. Thanks, James, for saving my life."

Yule Music Features Social Club Meeting

35 Hear Readings, Carols and Piano During Evening

The December meeting of the Ladies' Social club was held in the social room of the Presbyterian church, Friday evening, at 7:30 o'clock. Owing to the absence of the regular officers, Miss Helen Dunton, president, and Mrs. Edith Haswell, served as secretary.

The meeting was opened by repeating the Lord's Prayer, a short business session, during which reports of the standing committees were presented, followed, Mrs. W. W. Robinson, Mrs. J. O. Eagleson, and Miss Ruth Robinson, presented the program, which was largely composed of musical numbers. Two piano solos, "Minuet"—Paderewski, and "Christmas Fantasy"—Carl F. Mueller, were played by Miss Robinson. The next number was one which had been given previously at the Missionary Tea and was repeated by request, a reading, "Christmas, in Song and Story," by Mrs. Robinson, with the carols sung by Mrs. Eagleson, and Mrs. Melvin Yates, with Miss Abbe Clarke, at the piano. Of these numbers, an antiphonal duet, was especially pleasing. The next number was a duet, Overture from "Norma"—by V. Bellini, Mrs. Emil S. Toensmeier, and Miss Robinson. Mrs. Robinson read three of her original poems, "Cradle," "Perfection," and "Fragility," which were well received. A solo, "Holy Night," by Adam, sung by Mrs. Yates, completed the interesting program.

Refreshments were served by the hostess committee, Mrs. B. T. Hedges, chairman, Miss Essie Reber, Mrs. Charles Kiger, Miss Virginia Marlen, Mrs. George Hammett, Miss Abbe Clarke, and Mrs. E. A. WALNUT GIRLS DEFEATED

Perry and Muhlenberg Lose in Final Periods

Scioto township cagers pushed another formidable foe, Jackson township, from its path Friday evening by turning on the heat in a 45-25 contest. Unless some team unexpectedly tags the Commercial Point laddies on an off-night they seem "in", with the regular season's championship in their collective hip pockets.

Scioto girls won 22-14, and the reserves made it a clean sweep with a 23 to 15 contest.

Ashville remained on the heels of the Scioto boys with a 36-10 victory over Williamsport. Al Kauber juggled his lineup, putting Gray at a forward with Walter Gregg and dropping Junior Gregg, freshman, to a guard with Hoover. Walden remained at center. The combination clicked because buckets rained into the hoop from all angles.

Ashville girls took their game 24 to 9 and the reserves won a rougher thriller 13 to 11.

Pickaway Ahead

Pickaway township stayed even with Ashville by outscoring Monroe township 41 to 26 on the Williamsport court. The Pickaway reserves won in the other game, 28-13.

Creighton Anderson, speedy Pickaway star, tallied 18 points, receiving credit for a two-pointer. K. Walters tossed into the Pickaway bucket by mistake. Wilson added 12 to the Pickaway county. Three Monroe boys left the game on fouls.

New Holland put on a last-period 25-17, on the Darbyville court. The Muhlenberg crew was ahead starting the final session, but fell by the wayside in a 23-14 contest.

Darby took Perry township to town on the Derby court, Friday, 20-17, in a well-played game. Perry led nearly the whole way but was overtaken at the end of

Star of Ring

HEFFNER, 180-pound veteran of the ring, will feature the Circleville Athletic Club's Christmas charity wrestling-boxing card Monday evening starting at 8:15. Heffner, from Sherman, Texas, takes on the Italian flash, Joe Parelli, in a two-out-of-three fall encounter. A record crowd is expected to fill the C. A. C. gym. Two other wrestling matches, one to feature Eddie Watson, and two boxing matches are on the program. Youngsters will be admitted free if they present a jar of fruit or vegetables at the game, all of which will be given charitable organizations. Clete Kaufmann, veteran grappler, will referee Monday night's grunt matches.

NEW YORK FIGHT BOARD ATTACKS BERLIN ACTION

NEW YORK, Dec. 19.—(UP)—The New York State Athletic commission vigorously opposed today the transfer of the Jimmy Braddock-Max Schmeling heavyweight championship fight to Berlin.

The commission pointed out that it had contracts for the fight to be held here and that, if necessary, a federal injunction could prevent Braddock from sailing for Germany.

The commissioners termed as a "fair tale" the report that negotiations for a transfer had been started.

The third session, Perry held a 9-1 lead at the end of the first period. Darby township girls snapped out of it after losing to Jackson last week winning 24-11.

Walnut Victorious
Walnut township boys had just a little too much power for the Salt Creek youths Friday evening in a 22-18 game. Salt Creek has abandoned its girls team, so Walnut played Groveport Friday afternoon and lost 13 to 18.

Several of the teams will play next Tuesday and Wednesday evenings. Others will be idle until after the holiday vacation.

TIGERS BUMPED BY 22 POINTS AT CHILLICOTHE

Score is 7 to 29 as Big Jacques Cox Provides Huge Problem

RESERVES IN FAST TILT

Ability of Center Eliminates Chance for Red, Black

Circleville high school cagers were unable to stop a tall, dusky tipoff man named Jacques Cox, Friday evening, and went down to a 7 to 29 defeat at the hands of the Chillicothe quintet.

Last year the score was 23 to 9 in favor of Chillicothe. The Ross county crew took a 5-1 lead at the first period, 14 to 5 at the half, 23 to 5 at the third period.

The scoring of the Chillicotheans was confined to three men, Cox with 17, Rees with eight, and Kidnocker with four.

The Tigers were unable to fathom the secrets of Coach Earl Young's zone defense. Very few times were Red and Black cagers open inside the foul zone.

The Tiger reserves put up a good game, losing only 17 to 23 after trying the score 15-all in the third period.

Liston and Martin did a lot of work for the locals, while Keel counted 10 points for the winners.

Fritz Mackey, Ohio State frosh coach, was the referee. The lineups:

PITT PRACTICES IN NEW MEXICO ON BOWL JAUNT

SAN BERNARDINO, Cal., Dec. 19.—(UP)—University of Pittsburgh's Panthers, heading west for their fourth Rose Bowl football game in eight years, will arrive here shortly after noon today for a training session that will last until the eve of the New Year's day contest.

The first practice for the 34 team members will be held less than two hours after their arrival. Coach Jock Sutherland has indicated, explaining that his charges have been held back by the cold weather in the east since they were notified they had been selected to meet University of Washington in the annual intersectional classic.

In a practice drill at Albuquerque, N. M., yesterday the Panthers were reported in good physical condition, although stiff from the long train ride.

PASTOR DRIVES TOWARD FIGHT WITH JOE LOUIS

NEW YORK, Dec. 19.—(UP)—Bob Pastor, the little giant killer who breathes through his mouth and fears no man, big or small, in the prize ring, was ready for Joe Louis today.

Pastor worked up to the brawler's class last night by knocking out Ray Impellittere, towering 238-pound giant, in the seventh round of a scheduled 10-round bout to win the heavyweight championship of New York state.

A crowd of 5,240 persons paid $7,429.69 to see Impellittere counted out for the first time in nearly eight years of fighting. Pastor weighed 183½, fifty-three and three-quarters pounds less than Impellittere's 238.

Pastor, a former New York university football player, won with his fists, slashing "the Imp" and flattening him for the full count in 1 minute, 26 seconds of the seventh round.

If only a great man could be aware of greatness in time to select a family that wouldn't embarrass him.

About This And That In Many Sports

Rest Until Jan. 8

Jack Landrum's cagers, victorious once and defeated twice, will rest until Jan. 8 when they meet Bexley on the local court in the opening of the Central Buckeye league.—The following evening Ashville will be the foe on the Harrison township contest

Loop Teams Split

CBL teams had success Friday evening—Grandview dropped a 22-23 thriller at the hands of the Arlington team; Bexley defeated a pretty fast team from Lancaster, 20-14; Westerville took off more than it could chew at East, Columbus, losing 18 to 33; Marysville, with one of its strongest teams, whipped London, 29-17.—There's a basketball game at Williamsport this evening with Waterloo high school furnishing the opposition

East Five Whipped

The caliber of the Columbus high school teams is shown in Central's defeat at Pomeroy, 25 to 33.—The Central outfit is said to be the best in the city—East, victor over Westerville, lost to Academy

YANKEES BREAK 19 RECORDS IN YEAR'S GAMES

NEW YORK, Dec. 19.—(UP)—The American league had its greatest record-breaking season in history during 1936, according to final official averages released today.

Leading the way were the world champion New York Yankees who accounted for almost half of the shattered or tied records.

The league broke 24 and tied 14 major marks and shattered eleven. The Yankees, paced by Lou Gehrig, Joe DiMaggio, George Selkirk and Tony Lazzeri, accounted for a total of 31 records either tied or broken.

The Yankees accounted for 19 new major league records and pushed three American league marks off the books.

Greatest record-breaker of the year was Lazzeri, Yankee second baseman who broke three major league marks, tied one, set one American league record, shattered one world series record and equalled two others. His major league marks were all for home run hitting. He hit seven home runs in four consecutive games, six in three straight and two in the same game with bases filled each time.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

NO TRUMPS BAD FOR TWO-SUITERS

NEARLY always a hand containing a strong two-suit plays better at the suit more strongly supported by partner, than at no trumps. We have an illustration of this today, showing how much more flexible a suit make is than a call without trumps.

Bidding went: West, 1-Spade; East, 1-No Trump; West, 2-Hearts; East, 2-No Trumps; West, 3-Spades; East, 3-No Trumps, when he should have bid 4-Spades, and insured game.

Of course the opening lead was the K of clubs. Declarer allowed the first trick to pass, but he won the second trick with his Ace. The 7 of spades was led. When South played the J, dummy's Ace won the trick. The 3 was returned. Declarer's 9 lost to South's Q, and that player at once ran off three good clubs, after which he took the K of spades, defeating the contract two tricks. Of course East could have minimized his loss a trick, by taking one spade, one club, four heart and two diamond tricks, before letting South in. Probably declarer hoped to find North with both high spades and no club to lead back. That ideal condition would have given East three spades, four heart, two diamond and one club tricks, or one over his contract. With the possibility of so brilliant a termination East was justified in playing as he did.

Had West played the hand at spades, instead of allowing his partner to play no trumps, there would have been a Q of diamonds opening lead. Dummy's Ace would have given immediate entry. There would have been a 9 of spades return. South's J would have been taken with the Ace, and another round of spades taken, which would have put South in lead with his Q.

What South did when in would have been of no particular consequence. He might have led the good K of trumps for his second trick and to take away dummy's last trump. That would not have mattered. The trump still left in dummy was of no consequence to declarer. Later on South had to be given his K, anyway. Nor would it have mattered whether South led his K of clubs or returned partner's diamond lead. Before the hand was over declarer would have to hand South one club trick, but no diamond trick would have to be given North.

Any player could have made 4-odd at spades, by ruffing clubs, but no declarer could have made more than 2-odd at no trumps, a difference of two tricks.
